Like Vrikshho rakshati rakstih, there is human being only if there is environment. Without greenery there is no breath..Environment is the most precious gift to the living body. Without air, water, soil and trees in nature, there is no human race. Environment Day was started to be celebrated with the aim of creating awareness about environmental protection among humans. People around the world plant trees as part of the Environment Day celebrations. They do the work of planting plants and watering the plants.

Conclusion

Even though every year awareness programs are held all over the world, it is only a tragedy that human cruelty on nature is increasing day by day. Still man has to become conscious and take steps to protect the environment and make a green revolution. Environment day should not be limited to one day but should be continuous. Only then will the celebration of Environment Day get its true meaning. In our College Campus we are planted more than 20 plants.
